EXECUTIVE PROFILE

Fabeka Lebrón brings together academia, business and sport across the Iberoamerican ecosystem. Her career spans business diplomacy and the building of institutions that integrate education, art and sport as engines of sustainable development and of Iberoamérica's international standing.

She combines the strategic vision of an entrepreneur with the institutional sense of a cultural ambassador. She has been the architect of alliances among governments, companies, universities and leading sports organizations, building bridges between Europe and the Americas with a logic of influence, reputation and cooperation. Today she brings that experience to boards and governing bodies on both sides of the Atlantic.

She currently leads a chapter devoted to economic diplomacy and to mentoring people of talent and purpose, strengthening Iberoamérica's presence in the world from Barcelona, with active ties in Madrid, Lisbon, the Dominican Republic, Colombia and Brazil. She accompanies young professionals, the next generation of family businesses, women leaders and entrepreneurs as they build careers with judgment, confidence and international vision.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

“For the first thirty years of my professional life I built institutions; I want to devote the next thirty to building people. I have learned that institutions are worth what their people are worth: when a person grows in judgment, purpose and confidence, companies, families and society grow with them. That is the work of this stage of my life, and that is the legacy I want to build.”
